DESTRUCTIVE FIRE. - We learn that the extensive buildings connected with the Tokay vineyard at Payetteville was destroyed by fire on Monday, together with 30,000 gallons of wine. The loss was quite heavy, and we learn the insurance was only $15,000. The vineyard was the property of Messrs. H. R. Horne & Co.

ESCAPE OF CONVICTS-ONE KILL-ED. - We learn that a few days since three convicts employed on the W. N. C. R. R. escaped from those who had them in charge. On Sunday the escaped parties were discovered at Bridgewater, and in the attempt to capture them one was killed, one retaken and the third one escaped.

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED .-Gov. Brogden has commuted (to imprisonment for life) the death sentence of Robert McDonald, col., copvicted of burglary at the January term of Cumberland Superior Court and sentenced to be hung the 17th inst. The commutation was recommended by the jury who tried the POLICE MATTERS.-His Honor's levee was only fairly attended yesterday. E. B. Rogers, white, paid the usual penalty for imbibing too freely of benzine. Isaac Young, col., in the guard house and paid costs, and James Parish was bled to the tune of $5 and costs.

Wilson to complete the tunneling of the Blue Ridge between Old Fort and Asheville. It will be remembered that the contract of this work when first commenced was in the hands of Messrs. Malone & Wilson. It is to be hoped that Major Wilson may now be enabled to prosecute the work to completion.

THE PORTER CASE IN WILMING-TON.—The Wilmington Star, in speaking of the arrest in that city of the man John F. Porter, who recently escaped from this city, and his being brought before Judge Henry on a writ of habeas corpus, says:

"The case came up before Judge Henry, yesterday, on a writ of habcus corpus, and His Honor decided, after hearing arguments from counsel, that the prisoner should be remanded to the custody of Mr. Jno. S. Wise, who has a requisition for him from Gov. Smith. From this decision the prisoner's counsel, the Mesers. London, craved an appeal to the Supreme Court. At last accounts His Honor had not fixed the amount of the bond required and Porter still remained in the custody of the Sheriff." U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.-This court,

NOTHER HORRIBLE OUTRAGE-A NESRO FIEND THAT SHOULD HAVE HUNG AND QUARTERED,—The Bostole News of yesterday gives the following account of a horrible outrage which occurred in Halifax county last Saturday:

On Saturday afternoon last as Miss Cornella Redgood, an adopted daughter of Mrs. Peninah Bryan, living maar Whitakem, in Edgecombe county, was returning from the house of a neighbor a short distance away, she was waylaid in the woods by one Simon Ragiand, a notorions negro, who blindfolded and throttled her and committed a nameless outrage upon her person notwithstanding her stout resistance and frautte appeals for help. Her screams were heard by persons living near by but they could not reach the spot in time to save her from the indignity put upon her by the ruthless devil. Mr. S. P. Hilliard, passing that way, heard of the affair and at once dispatched a messenger and at once dispatched a messenger for Dr. Brodie, of Whitakers, who rendered necessary medical aid but rendered pecessary medical aid but the young lady was so badly injured as to cause apprehensions for her safety. Her throat, neck and arms were terribly bruised and forn as the miscreant choked and gagged her. For devilish brutality and outrageous inhumanity this gase has hardly a-parallel in the annals of crime and long may be the day before it is again. long may be the day before it is again our misfortune to record its like, Reared and educated under the most favorable circumstances and possess ed of admirable womanly traits which endeared her to her acquaintances she is highly respected and loved in her neighborhood.

The citizens of the vicinity were quickly aroused and a large number went in pursuit of the black devil. He was arrested on Monday night and yesterday he was identified by the young lady. He had a hearing before Justice S. P. Hilliard who sent bim to jail, the evidence being con-clusive, to wait trial at the next term of Superior Court for the county. If there is law or justice in this land it should be properly meted out to this miserably debased specimen of hum-anity. We are an advocate of "letting the law take its course" but in thi instance we would have been glad to hear that Judge Lynch had interven-

"JACK WOODSON."-We published a few days since Woodson's account of "Jack Woodson's" induction into the society of dogs in Wilson. The Friend of Temperance of this city gives a few inaccuracies into which Woodson fell. Says Brother Whitas

1. The Advance is mistaken as to the day. Jack did not land in Wil son on Monday.
2. The Advance is mistaken as to the mode of travel. Jack did not go paid the same penalty for the same offence; John Ryan, white, for dring the same thing, spent the night in the guard house and paid costs, not been away; has not had a fight is lying under our table while we write this; and so far from being the bad dog he is represented, we will further state that 'Jack' attended Raleigh Council F. of T., last Friday night and witnessed the initiation of seven young men. A FRUITLESS SAFE ROBBERY .- A few days since Messrs. McMackin & Faison, commission merchants of this city, lost one of the keys to their fron safe. On Wednesday night the party who had abstracted the key entered the room of this firm containing their iron safe, and unlocking the door of the same found himself confronted still by a seemingly secure inner safe. But this obstacle the thief was prepared to overcome, and by the free use of a chisel succeeded in bursting the inner lock off which (he doubtless supposed) would open to him a mine of wealth. The private drawer was robbed of its contents, the ribber going away the richer to lighty-fice fents. A check in the drawer was left untouched. Messrs. McMackin & Faison had reasons to believe the key had gotten into the possession of a thief, and hence left but little pickings for him.

HOMICIDES IN EASTERN CAROLINA -We learn that a few days since Levi Clark, colored, killed a negro man named Dick Ruffin, near Lewiston, Bertie county. The murderer was arrested and lodged in jail at Windsor. Whiskey and women are said to have been at the bottom of the difficulty.

A negro boy named Wm. Clinton, some eight years of age, was severely beat and stamped a few days since near Edwards Ferry, Halifax county, by two negro men named John Barnes and Manuel Devereux. The boy was conveyed to the residence of Major John B. Neal, but died from his injuries in three or four days. The murderers are now quietly resting in Halifax jail.

CHRISTMAS TRICKS .- As the time to buy goods for Christmas advances, we give the purchasing public this admonition; be sure to watch closely the columns of the NEWS, and see who invites you to purchase of them. Look well at the list of articles he advertises, and if he has what you want, he is the man to go to. Liberal advertisers are liberal dealers; mark that. The man who says that "it don't pay to advertise," just don't understand the first principles of business, and you don't want to deal with a man who don't know what he is doing himself.

DEATH OF A LATE CITIZEN OF RALEIGH .- We find the following in the New York Herald of Tuesday : "On the 13th inst., at the Lenox House, in Greenwich, Conn., Theonie Marie Rutjes, wife of A. J. Rutjes." Mr. Rutjes, it will be remembered, for a number of years kept the Nas tional Hotel of this city.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRES- the South; not even from the Repub-PUNDENCE.

Field-Day in the House of Repre-sentatives---Badioni Hanauvres met by the Democracy--Grant and Blates as Rivals for Republican Sopport-What the North Carellninns are Doing, &c., &c., &c.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15th, :1875. To-day, like yesterday, was stort of field-day in the House of Representatives, the Senate meanwhile being engaged most of the day in Rxecutive Session. Speaker Kerr's deliberation in the matter of arranging his committees meets general approbation, and even the Republicans how commendable courtesy furtheir eviduat appreciation of the embar-rassacrits of the Speaker in his delicate task of making committees where so many men, new not only to the country, but to affairs and politics in the national sense, are the material from which he is to select. The enforced delay of the Speaker as to the committees, opens the door to ample preparatory skirmishing before the erious business of legislation shall begin. Yesterday and to-day were passed in a sort of perfunctory way in calling the States, and a deluge of propositions fell upon a House not suprepared to meet the demands upon its patience.

RADICAL TACTICS FAIRLY MET. Yesterday's evolutions were characteristic of the minority which ex-Speaker Blaine controls as absolutely as though "His look were fate, his word were death." It was hardly strategy in any generous sense to father, as the Republicans did yesterday, the resolution offered by an inconsequential member from Illinois, practically branding ex-Confederate soldiers as unworthy to hold offices within the gift of the House, provided Union soldiers were willing to fill these offices. Generally it was condemned as very "dirty tactics." Mr. Cox, of New York, provided an easy escape from the supposed dilemma in which the resolution of the Illinois man was de signed to place the Northern Democrats, of either offending their Southern brethren by voting that Union soldiers alone deserve the offices in the gift of the House, or by a negative decision to give some color to the charge that the policy of the House is subject to ex-Confederate control. Mr. Con's amendment was really the I simplest possible statement of the national feeling of the country that consideration in the bestowal of DEMOCRATIC RETALIATION. Small as the Republican gain of yesterday was, the Democrats did not fail to-day to respond with the employment of a weapon that always penetrates to the very core of Republican unity. Again an Illinois man was the herald of a new topic for a House of Representatives unengaged with committee reports, and for galleries which are daily filled with people eager to witness the promised developments of each day's session. A resolution condemnatory of third term aspirations was introduced, and without any trouble was voted upon-Evidently not wholly surprised by its introduction, the Republicans were more worried by the resolution than were the Democrats on vesterday by the shallow expedient of the Illinois fanatic. Mr. Blaine speedily got outside, and found business in the lobby. Mr. Hoar rolled uneasily in his seat, Mr. Wheeler folded his hands upon his desk and looked imperturbable, Mr. Garfield betrayed as little emotion as possible, and the minor lights of Radicalism conformed as well as they could to the bearing of their leader. It was evident that the " hive was stirred." Mr. Blaine was accorded sympathy for his delicate situation by reason of his Presidential aspiration, and his refusal to vote by absenting himself was pronounced an fait by everybody. The vote was a regular slaughter of the third-term business so far as the House of Representatives can decree its condemnation by a vote almost unanimous, in which Republicans of character and reputation are found uniting with Democrats in the prohibition of Grant's hope and expecta-

BLAINE AS A PRESIDENTIAL CANDI-DATE.

For two years past Blaine has trimmed his sails for his Republican nomination for the Presidency. He is a shrewd gamester, and, Grant out of the way, he has a fair showing for the nomination, and he will make a fair candidate for Republican support. He preceded Grant in the religious dodge, and has played it far better than Grant's blundering game. In another letter I shall show how Blaine has made a better bid for Protestant sympathy than Grant, and has also commended himself to the Catholic whom Grant has irredeemably offended. The theme demands i separate letter in itself. Blaine is held by Southern members of the House to be a singularly able parliamentarian, a sagacious leader, a strong man before the people, and a vindictive laster of the Southern people. There is good reason for the motion that Blaine will make at an early day an aggressive speech as to general politics, and especially as to the South Hallocke for mathe arrangem nis for the same, as longer is disgence of mot be given.

Pease take notice thereof, and come and settle your accounts. the South. He looks for nothing from de 1 icans of the South. Grant will have in the Convention that will nominaate the Presidential candidate-the vote of every Southern State. Blaine knows this he knows, too, that the present administration, distrustful of office-holders in the South, is seeking to fill all places with men friendly to

Grant's third term aspirations. TEXAS PACIFIC. After adjournment to-day there was a good deal of talk in the lobbies concerning the vote so largely condemnatory of subsidies by the Government. Probably it was not a violent judgment that the resolution was simed at the Texas Pacific scheme which its friends pronounce s great scheme for the material deyelopment of the South, and its enemles assaft, as a "jub of Tom Scott's" -yet, the resolution was what Mr. Choate used to call a "string of glit tering generalities," and it would be a very verdant conclusion that anybody was committed by his vote of to-day upon this resolution. As to the Texas Pacific I find great diversity of opinion here among Southern representatives. Later in the session I shall attempt to analyze the vote ern development, or a gigantic job. At present it is hard to make classifleation. THE NORTH CAROLINIANS IN CON-upon this proposition which is plainly either a grand scheme for South-

GRESS. They are a good set-these North Carolina Democrats-and they are not only liked, but held in hish esteem. So far they have been quiet, but I have noticed that when the roll has been called the North Carolina members are always ready to answer with an emphatic endorsement of Democratic policy. Waddell says that he finds it difficult to get accustomed to voting with the majority after his long service in a forlorn minority. Senator Ransom frequently visits the House and enjoys the spectacle of Democratic ascendency with a relish perhaps made keener by his daily contact with Radical supremacy in the Senate. Looking to the great struggle of next year, it will perhaps not be long before North Carolina Democrats will be frequently interrogated as to the outlook in the Old North State for the Centennial year. Henderson has made a name by his martyrdom. A despatch to the New York Times says his dismissal continues to be the subject of vigorous and animated talk. Carl Schurz's paper, the Westliche Post, nominates Henderson for President and says Bristow much last of the way for that position. It is very clear that that journal with its powerful influence will never be brought in to the support of Grant, even if he is nominated for the third term.

THE Radicals make a how! that ex-Confederates are receiving a small share of the subordinate offices in the gift of the House of Representatives. We would like to ask these gentry what they did with their scruples at the last National Republican Convention when they made "Capt. ### THE VIRGINIA SENATOR.

The contest in the caucus of the Virginia Legislature which was prolonged through five days, was terlection of the Hon. John W. John. ston. The several ballotings have been given in our telegraphic columns.

It is pleasant to find that though the friends of the many eminent gentlemen whose names were before the caucus stoutly contested every inch of ground, there was nothing in the contest derogatory to the character of gentlemen, nothing violative of party discipline, nothing that ought to leave any unpleasant feeling. All was fair, open and manly.

Mr. Johnston, who was re-elected yesterday is the present incumbent, and is a gentleman probably the peer in character and intellect of any of his competitors, and though little distinguished for that brilliant oratory of which Virginia is so prolific, he is distinguished for sound practical judgment, enlarged and liberal views, and high personal character. Virginia may well felicitate herself that she has so many from whom to choose.

THE COMMANDER OF THE SHENANDO H.

We give place, to be exclusion of much other matter, to an article from the California Chronicle in relation to Capt. James I. Waddell, who recently arrived at San Francisco as Commander of the Pacific Mail Steamer, City of San Francisco, and we believe our readers will pardon ns for giving space to what relates to a North Carolinian who added such lustre to his native State, and who, of all the officers of the Coufederate service, had the sole honor of bearing its flag around the world.

The article in the Chronicle is not objectionable. But we add a slip from another San Francisco paper, sent us without naming the journal, which is offensive in the extreme.

The sentiments of this California journal are not to be taken as that of the North. It is only of that gan speaks, who, inside of the Union or outside of the Union, have no compromises to make with "the exfere and that of piracy.

Capt. Waddell owes his appointment not to his own seeking, but to the earnest, but unsought efforts of officers high in command in the U. S. Navy at the present time, who knew his courage, who knew his bonor, and who saw in him a man every way qualified by professional skill and personal characteristics to do justice to the powerful and loyal company that employed him.

And the company is wise enough, and sufficiently sensible of its own interests to pay no attention to the malignant cry of the loyal pack which tries to hound them on to Capt. Waddell's ruin. They will stand by him till this vindictive and unreasonable obstruction is overcome. Capt. ASTONISHMENT AT THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP OFFICE.

The Captain of the "City of San Francisco" Threatened with a Trial for Piracy. and Possible Death at Hopoluln.

When the men of the North clasped hands with the men of the South across the "bloody chasm," and joined in jovial fellowship under one flag, pledges were made that late unpleasantness" should should be buried with the past and that henceforth there should be no dividing line. But now after ten years have passed sipee the last gun was fired, it seems that one who figured on the side of the so-called Southern Confederacy is again to be prominently brought in public notice. This manual James I. Waldell, Captain of the salandid new steamer City of Sas Francisco, of the Pacific Mail Stranship line from this city to Honoldiu and Australia. Captain Waldell was a Lieutenaut-Commander in the Co federate navy, and had command of the rebel cruiser Shenandoah which DID SUCH TERRIBLE WORK among the whalers and merchant-men on the Pacific. He was classed as a pirate by the late Secretary of State, Wm. H. Seward, and was a error among the toilers of the sea. ince the closing of the war he had o occupation up to the time when the Pacific Mail Steamship Company sought him out and offered him the command of the City of San Francis. co, which position he accepted. A few days ago he brought the vessel into this, ort after a quick and highly successful passage: The departure of the ship for Honolulu and Anstralia was announced for the 8th inst. and yesterday it was discovered by a onicle reporter that Captain Waddell is not to go out in the vessel, and that on her first trip she is to be under the command of Captain Lachlan, an old employee of the company. This change created THE UTMOST SURPRISE AND ASTONamong the officers and erew of the class for which the Government orsubstitution of some other officer as Commander was, for the time being, made compulsory on the company.-The officers of the steamship lin rebels;" of men like Morton, who will wave the bloody shirt to the last; of men whose sense of individual loss embitters their hearts and distorts their judgment to the degree of destroying the distinction between the legitimate acts of warat length decided that it would not be safe for the Captain to take the

CONDEMNED TO DEATH. The company hope however, by re-taining the Cappin here to arrange matters with cream Hawnian sub-jects that he can take the ship out on its second trip. The ex-Attorney-General of the Hawnian tever ment and a well-known lawyer of this city were consulted by the company and advised not to permit Captain Wad-dell to take command of the vessel on this trip. In the event of his arrest and detention the ship would neces should not be impeded, as she carries the United States and British mails. first intimation that Captain Waddell would be arrested at the through the Sydney agent of the company, who stopped at Honolulu. Now for the occasion of this sudder outburst. In March, 1865, the closing year of the war, Captain Waddell with the Shenandoah while on his mission to destroy the commerce of the Northern States, cruised around the island of Punipette in the North Pacific Ocean. This island is inhabited by five different tribes of semisavages, and each tribe has a king.— In April THE "SHENANDOAH" ENTERED THE HARBOR, and, as a ruse, hoisted the American flag. Four vessels lay at anchor closely, and they at once flew the same colors from the gaff. Captain Waddell immediately lowered his false colors and raised the flag of the Southern Confederacy instead, and then opened fire on the four whalers, thus completely destroying them. It transpired later that three of the vessels were owned in New Bedford, Mass., and the other, the bark Har-vest, was the property of subjects of the Hawaiian Kingdom. Capt Waddell was anxiously looked for both by the United States Government and that of the Hawaiian Islands. When the rebellion was over he was in England, and Secretary Seward proclain ed to the British Government that Waddell was a pirate and should be reated as such. THE CAPTAIN ASKED FOR A TRIAL before an English jury, but this was not granted. An investigation was, however, had by the proper officials, and Waddell was exonerated. He claimed then, as he does now, that his manner of entering the harbor of Punipette was fair in war, and that if the Harvest had shown her true col ors she would have been spared. He said that he exceedingly regretted the destruction of the vessel, and believed that if its chief officer had been aboard instead of in a frolic on the island the flag of the Hawaiian Government would have been hoisted. It seems that it was the bark's mate that ordered the flying of the American flag, and Captain Waddell is firm in his belief that he acted according to the wishes of his superior officers in firing upon the ship. He asks why some-thing was not said or done by the REPRESENTATIVE OF THE HAWAIIAN

GOVERNMENT

Resident in Washington when he (the Captain) was for so long a time within forty miles of that city; and, further, expresses his willingness to assist the owners of the Harvest in obtaining relief before the Board of Arbitration in Washington. He wonders how the Hawaiian subjects expect to gain anything by persecuting him. In the war, he adds, he This is a question which we hope lost everything and lead no employment until the Pacific Mail Steamill be at once brought to the atten- ship Company requested him to take command of the City of San Franeisco, and now, when he has reached this city and is just about to fairly enter upon his duties, he discovers that he is to be arrested in Honolulu. ostensibly upon civil suits, but in all probability for the grave crime of piracy upon the high seas, and finally imprisoned for the remainder of his life, or may be made to suffer the death penalty. He complains that Hawaiian Government had bim at a great disadvantage. His log-book of the Shenandoah is not with him, and neither has he any of his old officers or crew as witnesses. HE WAS DEEPLY AFFECTED when informed that he would be superseded in command of the City of Sin Francisco. He is to temporarily take Captain Lachlan's place as Superintendent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's docks in this city. He was accompanied here by his wife and has rooms at the Palac Hotel. He rapturously speaks of his attachment for the City of San Francisco and declares it to be the best steamship afloat. Strenuous efforts will be made by the company to have the difficulties removed, so that Capt, Waddell will be able to go out on the vessel's second trip. It is highly probable, however, that the matter will go before Congress and that there some action will be taken. A protest is being drawn up on behalf Captain and company by an ex-Judge sent to Washington. The vessel will sail as advertised, with Captain Lachlan as its chief officer. The company is sorely vexed and puzzled and is de termined to retain Captain Waddell in its service. They have offered him but this he has declined.

THE SHENANDOAH.

An Interview with Captain Waddel -an Eventini Cruise. Captain James I. Waddell, commander of the Pacific Mail Company's newest and most beautiful steamer-the City of San Franciscocarries about in his person a very large volume of unwritten history. He was not exactly born a seaman, like Admiral Perter, but he was educated for that profession at the National Naval Academy at Annapolis and has made seaman sion of his life. After his graduation from Annapolis in 1847, he served continuously in the United States navy until the breaking out of the war of the rebellion in 1861. During that period he was stationed at San Francisco for several months, in 1859, ending that particular service by sailing in the United States steamer Saginaw, then just built at Mare Island. He then ranked as Second Lieutenant. The Saginam made her initial cruise to China. Lieutenant Waddell remained in her twenty-two months, and then returned to the Atlantic coast, via the Cape of Good Hove, in the old sloop-of-war John Adams, long since out of service. He remain-

Forts Jackson and St. Phillip, and demonstrated the inability of any existing force to resist it. Commodore Whittle, the Confederate commander of the station, recognizing his inabil-ity to cope with so formidable an enemy, promptly ordered the destruction of all the yessels affoat. In obedience to this order Lieutenant Waddell fired the Mississippi and abandoned her when his foe was all the bandwich her when his foe was all the statements have been supported by the statement of the statement has been supported by the statement of the state ready nearly on top of him. He esriver to Vicksburg, and thence over-land to Richmond. He was next assigned to duty as ordnance officer at Drury's Bluff, on the James river, or Fort Darling as it was known through out the Federal lines. Commodore, a way Admiral, Rogers was sent with a very light flotilla to reduce this work. It was a desperate and really hopeless undertaking, as Commo-dore Rogers well knew, but he manifested no hesitation on that account, and, with his accus'omed submission to superior authority, proceeded to the duty without questioning, and submitted without complaining to one of the most serious defeats of the war. As Captain Waddell says, "Rogers here made one of the hard-est fights against the greatest odds of impossibility to take that work After Drury's Bluff, Waddell was sent to Charleston, as second in comnand, to organize what was then known as a "forlorn hope," to resist the entrance of the Federal monitors into that harbor. Defensive works were built, a small fleet was improvised, torpedoes and obstructions were planted throughout the harbor, and other arrangements perfected to give the hostile visitors a warm reeption, but they failed to put in an appearance, and so all this enterprise was wasted. Waddell remained at Charleston two or three months and was then ordered to England to sail as executive officer under Captain T. F. Page, in one of the ironclads then ing for the naval service of the Confederacy by the Lairds. The activity of our Government prevented these vessels getting to sea under ( e flag for which they were originally intended, and thus this amounted to nothing. But Waddel was kept abroad by orders of his Government until he finally did succeed in getting ocean service, and herein s the volume of unwritten history of which mention has already been

DOAH. When a Chronicle reporter called upon Captain Waddell yesterday in elation to this matter, the captain declined to be interviewed. "I inteud, some day," he said, "to publish a full history of my cruise in the She-mandoah. Indeed, I have it written already, but have not been able to publish it. I have nothing to withand that history is all I have got aside from my profession."

The reporter assured him that he did not mean to take the bread out of his mouth, but only wanted to introduce him properly to the comm whereupon he courteously sketched his career in that famous Confederate cruiser substantially as follows:
The Shenandoah was a wooden steamer of about 1,000 tons burden, built in Glasgow in 1863, and known as the Sea King. Capt. Waddell, after the failure of the attempt to get the Laird ships to sea, had been instructed by his Government to purchase a vessel for a cruiser, and to proceed in her to the Pacific Ocean and raid on the American whaling fleet. He had difficulty in finding a suitable vessel that was available, but after repeated efforts, extending through an entire year, in the Fall of 1864, he found the Sea King and suceeeded in making arrangements with her owner for her purchase. In September of that year she cleared from London with a cargo of coal for Bombay. On the same day a small steam er, the Laurel, fitted out as a block ade-runner, loaded with armament stores, etc., and carrying a number of Confederate officers, including Capt. Waddell, and some extra seamen cleared from Liverpool for Nassau. The Laurel sailed directly for the sland of Madeira, where she awaited the Sea King. When the latter was seen in the offing the Lauret ran out to ber, and there on the broad ocean the purchase and sale was consum-mated, the Confederate flag hoisted over the Sea King, her name ed to the Shenandoah, and she was proclaimed a vessel of the navy of the Confederate States of America. Captain Waddell assumed command with a full staff of officers and a crew consisting of but nine men and a boy The armament, consisting of six guns, with the necessary ammuni-tion and stores, were transferred from the Laurel, the old crew were landed at Madeira, and the cruiser, thus scantily manned, started on her career. Under the guidance of Maury's chart a quiet spot in the ocean was found, where the vessel lay as still as if at anchor in San Francisco harbor, where all necessary alterations were made, the armament placed in position, the crew drilled, and other necessary preparations made for the warlike mission upon which she had entered.

CRUISING AND RECRUITING. Captain Waddell says that at this time his working force was so small that he was unable to set histopsails. But his officers turned in and helped as ordinary seamen, and with their aid the ship was worked until necessary recruits could be obtained. For this purpose he opened a recruiting office on the high sea, and whenever he fell in with a vessel sought volunteers from her, though carefully avoiding coercion or anything approaching imprisonment. The first prize he made was the brig Alina of Boston, bound from London to Bueness with softward from London to Bueness with softward from London. nos Ayres with railroad iron. Her Captain protested against her capture and made oath that the war was ended and peace had been declared. After he had made and sworn to this statement, Captain Waddell, who had sailed from Liverpool ten days later than the Alina from London, produced Liverool papers to show the falsity of the Captain's statement. He then scuttled and sunk the prize. The Captain of the Alina, when his falsehood was exposed merely replied that he did not consider it wrong to tell a lie to save his property.

The Shenandoah got some recruits from the crew of the Alina. Subsequently she fell in with a chipper ship freighted with Cardiff coal, This vessel she bonded and sent the rest of the Alina's crew to port in her.

For four months the Shenandoah cruised in the Atlantic, preying on any American vessels she could find, and then doubled the Cape of Good Hope and sailed for Melbourne for these had recruited her crew by volthese had recruited her crew by voluntary enlistments to forty-eight men. She reached Melbourne in January, 1865, and was admitted to the harbor, where she remain it nineteen days repairing machinery and laying in coal and supplies. This was the first harbor she had entered since her transfer in September of the island of Madeira, and the first opportunity that had presented itself for the vessel in perfect trim. When this was effected she sailed at once on the mission for which she was originally intended—the destruction of the American whaling fleet on the Pa-

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE WHALERS. The stoppage at Melbourne, how-ever, had afforded opportunity to those interested to notify the whalers of her presence and the South Pacific was quickly cleared of all such craft. After cruising all over the South Pacific and fluding no prey. Captain Waddell headed north and followed the fleet to the Arctic Ocean. He overhauled them in the high latitudes of destruction among them. Duand July he followed his disagreeable duty, pursuing the whalers as far as 97° north latitude, capturing and destroying in all twenty-eight of teen together and destroyed them all Several of the whalers he landed and provisioned, sending them to port with the prisoners captured and paroled from the vessels destroyed. Captain Waddell asserts that in nearly every instance the officers of these essels claimed that the war was ended, but as they could not prove the fact and professed to have no later tidings than he had he could not rely upon their assertions. He justifies his by referring to the affidavit of the master of the brig Alina, and further claims that it would have been treasonable in him to have spared them simply on their naked assertions. After the destruction of the whalers, the Shenandoah returned southward and when off San Francisco, on the 2d of August, 1865, she fell in with the British bark Buracoota from whose master Waddell received the first authentic news of the fall of the Confederacy. He at once shaped his course for Liverpool, via Cape Horn, where he surrendered his ship to the British Government. Soon after his surrender he was placed on trial, on a charge of piracy on the high seas; preferred by direction of Secretary Seward, but was honorably acquitted by a British jury.

SUMMARY OF THE CRUISE. Captain Waddell says the Shenan-doah was at sea under his command fourteen months, during all of which time she was in but the one port of Melbourne, and there but once. For a continuous period of eight months her anchors remained undisturbed at her bows, their lashings not even being removed. This, he claims, is the longest continuous cruising on During this time she sailed 58 000 statute miles and visited every ocean on the globe except the Antarctic. She is the only ship, the Captain boasts, that carried the Conhold or conceal; but I am a poor mate, mentions with pride and manifest pleasure that throughout this proracted cruise, and notwithstanding the number of vessels he captured and destroyed, not a single life, friendly or hostile, was lost. He ex-pressed regret for the property be felt it his duty to destroy, and says it always cost him pain to scuttle or burn ship, even though it belongeds to an enemy. From the time he left Liverpool in the Laurel until he returned and surrendered the Shenandoah he received no communication of any nature from the Confederate Government, nor even from his own family or friends, nor did any of his officers. When he surrendered, the ship was in perfect trim, and as neat as when first leaving port. Her ticy shippage appearance attracted the most favorable comments of the Eu-

[From a San Francisco Exchange] A Renewal of Rebellion Reminiscen-

The new steamer San Francisco, belonging to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, arrived in our port on Friday last, commanded by Captain James I. Waddell. This gentleman is not unknown to fame. He is a historic character. He was command er, during the civil war, of the Confederate steamer Shenandoah which cruised once upon the Pacific. His fame as a naval commander was earned by the courage necessary to attack unarmed merchantmen, and the prowess required to brave whaling vessels cruising for blubber in our North Pacific sea. Having lit up our ocean by the fires of burning ships that had no means to resist his piratical attacks, he comes, now that peace is declared, to serve the merchants he ruined and the people he insulted by commanding one of our China steamers. This gallant naval officer is an improvement upon the old fashioned pirates that sailed the Spanish Main, ecause, to his credit be it said, he did not compel his victims to walk the plank—because dead men tell no -but he sent them to San Francisco after he had burned their ships. He sailed not under the black flag, with its death's head and cross bones, but under the glorious banner of th Stars and Bars and under the commission of Secretary Mallory. He bonded the ship Nile, but as the bond was only payable after the Confederate States should achieve their independence, it was but a bit of harmless pleasantry. It would be so much easier for us to forgive our Southern brethren and forget their efforts to destroy the Union, if they would not thrust themselves too prominently forward, that we are almost constrained to wish that Commander Waddell had been assigned to some other field of service than upon a passenger ship in the Pacific. We recognize the moral beauty of the code that demands us to love our enemies and forgive those who have despitefully use us; that requires us when smitten upon one cheek to turn the other also; but we find it hard to forget that Commander Waddeil burned our ships after the war was over. We think it would have been better to have sent this gentle man to Congress than for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to have brought him to a place so fragrant of ils cowardly exploits.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

CONGRESSIONAL, WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.

Senate.-The usual number of memorials and private bills presented. Conklin presented a memorial from practical steamboat men, and persons engaged in navigation, designating certain portions in the steamboar laws which should be changed. In presenting the memorial, Conkling sald, he took pleasure in laying this paper before the Senate, because it indicated particularly what changes should be made, and it also showed that the men engaged in steamboating had some regard for the safety of those traveling on steamboats.

Epencer said, at the last session of the Alabama Legislature, a committee was appointed to inquire whether corrupt practices had been used to secure his election to the Senate. the Legislature which appointed this committee was not the one by which he was elected to the Senate, he had not appeared before it to answer the charges. He denied the charges of fraud and corruption, and said that the Legislature which appointed this committee was elected by fraud the same as the one recently elected in Mississippi. The Alabama election by which this Legislature was put in, was like that in Mississippi. It was part of a conspiracy to overthrow the lawful government in the South. He recognized the Senate of the United States as the only body having au-thority to inquire into his election and his right to a seat in this chamber. He therefore offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Privileges and Elections to inquire whether George E. Spencer, a Senator in Congress from the State of Alabama, did use or cause to be used corrupt practices to secure his election to a seat in the Senate, and authorizing said committee to send for persons and papers and sit during the holiday recess.

Davis suggested a resolution to lay on the table and be printed.

Conkling said the Senator from Alabama had been assailed and he asked for an investigation by a Senate committee. He hoped the Sena-tor from West Virginia would not ask a postponement.

Thurman said he knew nothing whatever of the case, but it seemed to him that the resolution as drawn simply directed an inquiry as to whether the Senator himself had used corrupt practices. The broader question as to whether the election was secured by fraud was not covered by the resolution. Spencer said he would modify it to meet the views of the Senator from thio.

The resolution was then mount as follows:

The Solution was then mount to read as follows:
